Capacity Building for Integrity and Good Governance at Universitas Padjadjaran

As part of its commitment to strengthening good governance and institutional integrity, Universitas Padjadjaran has initiated a series of training and capacity-building programs across its faculties and directorates. These efforts are integral to the development of Integrity Zones (Zona Integritas) aimed at achieving Corruption-Free Areas (WBK) and Clean and Serving Bureaucratic Areas (WBBM).

The training programs are designed to build awareness and competence among academic and administrative staff in areas such as anti-corruption practices, transparent service delivery, public accountability, and change management. Participants are introduced to the Integrity Zone framework, including key components such as performance planning, public service standards, risk management, and information disclosure. Practical workshops and internal simulations are conducted to ensure that each unit is equipped with the knowledge and tools to implement reforms effectively.

The training sessions are structured and aligned with national evaluation standards, and facilitated by internal reform task forces in collaboration with external experts when needed. Each unit develops action plans based on these training sessions, followed by internal monitoring and reporting mechanisms.

Through these ongoing initiatives, Unpad ensures that its Integrity Zone development is not merely procedural, but also transformative—fostering a campus culture of professionalism, accountability, and service excellence that supports the university's broader academic and reputational goals.
